- In conclusion, the above strides in the field of education harp on the adage of holistic approach to the teaching learning processes, which lay stress on the emotional quotient of a child along with the cognitive and environmental factors. Also, the pandemic in the past years, had wreaked havoc on the world around us But as we all are aware, our students, as well as our valued teachers, operated from within the confines of their homes and did not allow the threat to dampen their spirit of "INQUIRY" and true learning. We gradually limped back to the daily hustle bustle of traditional classrooms along with the latest endeavor, the hybrid learning, and this has kept us in good stead over the rest and rise like a Phoenix to fill in the loopholes that had been created in the past 2 years. Our future endeavors are many and it is only a matter of time before we emerge the winners, yet again for the world to witness and admire.
